

Data Recovery Service

As the parent company of IT Call (Deltrus Limited) is a Member of the 'Seagate Partner Program' we are proud to announce that we can now offer Professional Data Recovery as part of our services. The Recovery Experts Seagate recently bought Maxtor making it the largest hard drive manufacturer in the world. With their expertise and research in the field of magnetic storage and media they have launched a new service to help businesses and individuals recover lost data from damaged or formatted hard drives. Their service stands out not only because of its quality but because of their 'No Files, No Charge' policy. Yes that's right, Seagate do not charge anything for data that they cannot recover. They will check the drive during an initial evaluation and if the data is recoverable then they will let the customer know how much it will cost to recover.

The Deal There is normally a small fee for the initial evaluation check but even that is waived for members of the Seagate Partner Program. As we are part of this scheme and do not have to pay the evaluation fee we decided to pass on this saving to our customers. Any customer using Seagate's data recovery service will not have to pay evaluation fee as long as they book the service from our website. This means there is nothing to lose for those that would like to see if their data can be recovered. No evaluation Fee and if the data cannot be recovered then no recovery fee. If you are hanging on to some old hard drive in the hope that you might be able to retrieve some lost data from it then don't delay. Submit A New Case today. You have nothing to lose!
